

Georgia

Ethnicity in Georgia

Group selection

We identify the following politically relevant ethnic groups: Georgians, Abkhazians, Armenians, Azeri, and (South) Ossetians.

The Census data of Georgia in 2002 does not include South Ossetia and Abkhazia (<sup>1788</sup>), those numbers are only approximations based on the estimated size of the population in these regions available at the website of the Minority Rights Group International (<sup>1789</sup>, <sup>1790</sup>). A new census was conducted in 2014, again not including the regions of South Ossetia and Abkhazia (<sup>1791</sup>). Based on a census in South Ossetia in 2015 (<sup>1792</sup>) and one in Abkhazia in 2011 (<sup>1793</sup>), the percentages were revised back to 2003.

The Adzhars (Ajars) in South-western Georgia are considered politically irrelevant. The Adzhars are ethnically closely related to Georgians, but are Muslims, thus they were also called “Muslim Georgians”. Since independence from the SU a Christianization took place, so that by now about half of the Adzhars are Muslims and half Christians (<sup>1794</sup>). The Russian minority is irrelevant due to mass-emigration of Russians after Georgia’s independence. There was no evidence of Russians being politically organized in independent Georgia.

Power relations

1991-2017

There are two periods with same power stati but different group sizes, resulting from the emigration of Armenians, Russians and other politically irrelevant ethnic groups.

Power relations remained static in Georgia since independence (<sup>1795</sup>; <sup>1796</sup>). Georgians are the dominant majority in the country. The Armenians and Azeri are both regionally concentrated and have a few representatives in the government, but are considered politically “powerless” as they lack executive power (<sup>1797</sup>). It is difficult for them to gain political power. The law prohibits parties that do not have members in all rayons to run in national elections. This aims to prevent parties from regionally concentrated ethnicities to become strong at the national level (<sup>1798</sup>). Although there were some positive shifts in terms of minority rights after the Rose Revolution, there have been no substantial improvements in grant-

<sup>1788</sup> [National Statistics Office of Georgia, 2002a]

<sup>1789</sup> [Minority Rights Group International, 2008a]

<sup>1790</sup> [Minority Rights Group International, 2008b]

<sup>1791</sup> [Geostat, 2016]

<sup>1792</sup> [Georgia Today, 2016]

<sup>1794</sup> [Toft, 2001]

<sup>1795</sup> [International Crisis Group, 2011]

<sup>1796</sup> [US State Department, 2010–2013]

<sup>1797</sup> [Minority Rights Group International, 2015]

<sup>1798</sup> [Zollinger Bochsler, 2012]

ing political power on the national level to minorities (<sup>1799</sup>, <sup>1800</sup>). While the Georgian government took several steps to integrate ethnic minority communities (through language instruction, education and participation in several programs) and while few members of ethnic minorities are present in the parliament as well as occupying positions in local governments, ethnic minority representation on the national political arena generally remained limited and far lower than its representation in the country (<sup>1801</sup>). In the elections of 2015, the Georgian Dream coalition won again, in the elections of 2016 increasing its vote share even more (<sup>1802</sup>).

As a result of the ethno-territorial conflicts in the beginning of 1990s, the South-Ossetians and the Abkhazians have regional autonomy in their secessionist republics (<sup>1803</sup>). While conflicts in these regions have been “frozen” between 1994 and 2008, in 2008 the violent conflict re-occurred in South Ossetia which resulted in the recognition of the two regions as independent states by Russia. Already after the conflicts in the beginning of 1990s, the Georgian government had no power in these two regions (<sup>1804</sup>). Most of the international society considers Abkhazia and South Ossetia as part of Georgia, while Russia, Venezuela, Nicaragua and Nauru have officially recognized them as independent states (BBC2017; MRG2015).

<sup>1799</sup> [Minority Rights Group International, 2009]

<sup>1803</sup> [King, 2001]

<sup>1804</sup> [US State Department, 2010–2013]

Bibliography

- [BBC, 2017] BBC. (2017). Georgia country profile. Retrieved on 28.09.2017 from: <http://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-17301647>
- [Caucasus Institute for Peace, Democracy and Development, 2002] Caucasus Institute for Peace, Democracy and Development. (2002). Ethnic-Confessional Groups and Challenges to Civic Integration in Georgia. In: Nodia, Ghia. (ed.). (2002). Ethnic-Confessional Groups and Problems of Civil Integration in Georgia: Azeri, Javakheti Armenian and Muslim Meskhetian Communities. Tbilisi: Caucasus Institute for Peace, Democracy and Development.
- [Georgia Today, 2016] Georgia Today. (2016). South Ossetian Authorities Release Results of 1st Census in 26 Years. Retrieved on 13.10.2017 from: <http://georgiatoday.ge/news/4450/South-Ossetian-Authorities-Release-Results-of-1st-Census-in-26-Years->
- [Geostat, 2016] National Statistics Office of Georgia (Geostat). (2016). 2014 General Population Census. Retrieved on 13.10.2017 from: http://www.geostat.ge/cms/site\_images/\_files/english/population/Census\_release\_ENG\_2016.pdf
- [US State Department, 2010–2013] US State Department. (2010–2013). Georgia: Human Rights Reports. United States Department of State, Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor.
- [International Crisis Group, 2011] International Crisis Group. (2011). Georgia: The Javakheti Region's Integration Challenges. Europe Briefing # 63.
- [King, 2001] King, Charles. (2001). The Benefits of Ethnic War: Understanding Eurasia's Unrecognized States. World Politics, 53(4), 524-552.
- [Minority Rights Group International, 2011] Minority Rights Group International. (2011). Georgia Overview. Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: <http://www.minorityrights.org/1909/georgia/georgia-overview.html>
- [Minority Rights Group International, 2009] Minority Rights Group International. (2009). Breaking the Cycle of Exclusion:

- Minortiy Rights in Georgia Today. Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: <http://www.minorityrights.org/9547/briefing-papers/breaking-the-cycle-of-exclusion-minority-rights-in-georgia-today.html>
- [Minority Rights Group International, 2008a] Minority Rights Group International. (2008a). South Ossetia Overview (Unrecognized State). Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: <http://www.minorityrights.org/2324/south-ossetia-unrecognized-state/south-ossetia-unrecognized-state-overview.html>
- [Minority Rights Group International, 2008b] Minority Rights Group International. (2008b). Abkhazia Overview (Unrecognized State). Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: <http://www.minorityrights.org/1928/abkhazia-unrecognised-state/abkhazia-overview-unrecognised-state.html>
- [Minority Rights Group International, 2015] Minority Rights Group International. (2015). Georgia. Retrieved on 29.09.2017 from: <http://minorityrights.org/country/georgia/>
- [National Statistics Office of Georgia, 2002a] National Statistics Office of Georgia. (2002a). Ethnic Groups by Major Administrative-Territorial Units. Census of Georgia in 2002. Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: http://www.geostat.ge/cms/site\_images/\_files/english/census/2002/03%20Ethnic%20Composition.pdf
- [National Statistics Office of Georgia, 2002b] National Statistics Office of Georgia. (2002b). Major Findings of the First General Population Census of Georgia in 2002, Volume I (Georgian version). Retrieved on 15.3.2014 from: http://www.geostat.ge/cms/site\_images/\_files/georgian/census/2002/I%20tomi%20-%20saqarTvelos%20mosaxleobis%202002%20wli%20pirveli%20erovnuli%20sayovelTao%20aRweris%20Sedegebi.pdf
- [Reuters, 2017] Reuters. (2017). Ruling party in Georgia decisively wins parliamentary vote. Retrieved on 29.09.2017 from: <http://www.reuters.com/article/us-georgia-election/ruling-party-in-georgia-decisively-wins-parliament-vote-idUSKCN1272AT>
- [Toft, 2001] Toft, Monica D. (2001). Multinationality, Regions and State Building: The Failed Transition in Georgia. Regional and Federal Studies, 11(3), 123-142.
- [UNPO, 2015] Unrepresented Nations & Peoples Organization. (2015). Abkhazia. Retrieved on 13.10.2017 from: <http://unpo.org/members/7854>
- [Wheatley, 2009] Wheatley, Jonathan. (2009). The Integration of National Minorities in the Samtskhe-Javakheti and KvemoKartli

Provinces of Georgia: Five Years into the Presidency of Mikheil Saakashvili. ECMI Working Paper #44. Flensburg: European Center For Minority Issues.

[Wheatley, 2006] Wheatley, Jonathan. (2006). Defusing Conflict in Tsalka District of Georgia: Migration, International Intervention and the Role of the State. ECMI Working Paper #36. Flensburg: European Center for Minority Issues.

[Wheatley, 2005] Wheatley, Jonathan. (2005). Obstacles Impeding the Regional Integration of the Kvemo Kartli Region of Georgia. ECMI Working Paper #23. Flensburg: European Center for Minority Issues.

[Wheatley, 2004] Wheatley, Jonathan. (2004). Obstacles Impeding the Regional Integration of the Javakheti Region of Georgia. ECMI Working Paper #22. Flensburg: European Center for Minority Issues.

[Zollinger Bochsler, 2012] Zollinger, Daniel & Bochsler, Daniel. (2012). Minority Representation in a Semi-Democratic Regime: the Georgian Case. Democratization 19(4), 611-641.

Political status of ethnic groups in Georgia

From 1991 until 2002

Group name	Proportional size	Political status
Georgians	0.694	DOMINANT
Armenians	0.08	POWERLESS
Azeri	0.056	POWERLESS
Ossetians (South)	0.032	SELF-EXCLUSION
Abkhazians	0.017	SELF-EXCLUSION

From 2003 until 2017

Group name	Proportional size	Political status
Georgians	0.817	DOMINANT
Azeri	0.058	POWERLESS
Armenians	0.052	POWERLESS
Abkhazians	0.03	SELF-EXCLUSION
Ossetians (South)	0.016	SELF-EXCLUSION

Figure 333: Political status of ethnic groups in Georgia during 1991-2002.

Figure 334: Political status of ethnic groups in Georgia during 2003-2017.

Geographical coverage of ethnic groups in Georgia

From 1991 until 2008

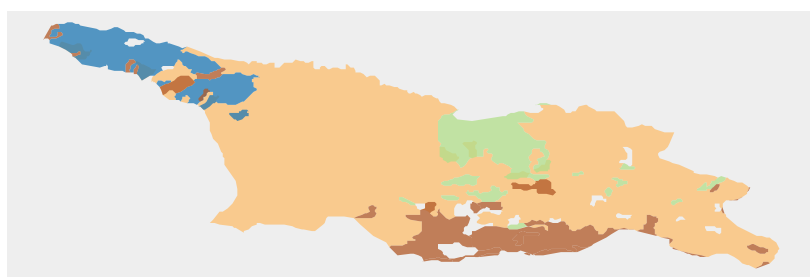

Figure 335: Map of ethnic groups in Georgia during 1991-2008.

Group name	Area in km <sup>2</sup>	Type
Georgians	51 344	Regionally based
Abkhazians	5505	Regionally based
Ossetians (South)	5155	Regionally based
Armenians	3741	Regionally based
Azeri	3133	Regionally based

Table 113: List of ethnic groups in Georgia during 1991-2008.

From 2009 until 2017

Figure 336: Map of ethnic groups in Georgia during 2009-2017.

	Group name	Area in km <sup>2</sup>	Type
■	Georgians	50 933	Regionally based
■	Abkhazians	5505	Regionally based
■	Ossetians (South)	5155	Regionally based
■	Armenians	3741	Regionally based
■	Azeri	3133	Regionally based

Table 114: List of ethnic groups in Georgia during 2009-2017.

Conflicts in Georgia

Starting on 1991-12-21

Side A	Side B	Group name	Start	Claim	Recruitment	Support
Government of Georgia	National Guard and Mkhedrioni	Georgians	1991-12-21	No	No	No
Government of Georgia	Zviadists	Georgians	1992-01-20	No	Yes, from EGIP	No

Starting on 1992-05-11

Side A	Side B	Group name	Start	Claim	Recruitment	Support
Government of Georgia	Republic of South Ossetia	Ossetians (South)	1992-05-11	Explicit	Yes	Yes

Starting on 1992-08-13

Side A	Side B	Group name	Start	Claim	Recruitment	Support
Government of Georgia	Republic of Abkhazia	Abkhazians	1992-08-13	Explicit	Yes	Yes